WELCOME NOTE

The Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship takes place during a time of extraordinary challenge in international and domestic realms. Mass migration from the Middle East and Africa. Refugees making dangerous voyages across the Mediterranean. ISIS, terrorism and fear. Racial tensions and violence in cities across America and Europe. Stark global inequality. The surge of nationalist, xenophobic and extremist politics in Europe and the United States. Rising Antisemitism and Islamophobia on both sides of the Atlantic.

These are some of the most challenging issues of our time — and they are the issues that Humanity in Action is committed to addressing in our programs. We believe that the challenges of diversity and democracy require a new generation of leaders: young people who have the knowledge, conviction and networks to confront the world's most complicated human dilemmas.

Our aim in this third year of the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship is to provide historical and contemporary insights into these critical issues from some of the most important observers and practitioners on both sides of the Atlantic and beyond — leaders in government, foreign policy institutions, business, media, culture and the academy.

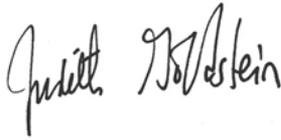

The wide range of subjects that we will explore with our Fellows includes migration and refugees, international law and institutions, security and conflict, terrorism and counterterrorism, national sovereignty, the solidity (or lack thereof) of the European Union, international development, trade and business, technology, and authoritarianism and human rights — as they relate, in particular, to minorities. We will also examine the role of non-governmental organizations, political parties, pressure groups and a variety of domestic constituencies in the formulation of foreign policy.

Questions about diversity and pluralism, now generating enormous pressures on our national societies, will intersect with unusual frequency throughout the program. We will discuss the formation and practice of foreign policy, in response to the challenges of diversity, by a diverse cadre of institutions, groups and individuals and the impact of national and foreign policy on pluralistic societies. We will explore diversity in broad perspectives — diversity of peoples, ideas, values, institutions and practices.

Embarking on this program, Humanity in Action has specific goals: to make our societies more effective and constructive in addressing national and global issues; to recognize the power and dignity in diversity based upon different cultural and historical perspectives; to appreciate the importance of pluralism as it intersects and today, in fact, drives international issues; to increase the representation of minorities in international fields; and to expand perspectives in graduate programs and research communities to include issues of diversity and pluralism in the consideration of international affairs.

We are very grateful to our many speakers in Washington, Berlin, Warsaw and Athens and to those institutions and individuals hosting us, especially the Museum of the History of Polish Jews POLIN and Menora in Warsaw and Technopolis in Athens.

With thanks,

Humanity in Action

ABOUT THE FELLOWSHIP

In 2014, Humanity in Action launched the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship, a new transatlantic educational program for graduate students about international relations and global diversity. In this program, a group of 24 American and European Fellows engage in an intense and demanding series of high-level seminars, discussions and site visits to explore a wide range of international issues with particular emphasis on democracy, diversity and pluralism.

The 2016 fellowship will take place in Washington, Berlin and Warsaw. It will conclude in Athens at the Seventh Annual Humanity in Action International Conference. In the United States, Germany, Poland and Greece, the Fellows will meet with experts and practitioners at governmental agencies, international NGOs, universities, think tanks, media outlets and foreign policy organizations. The program will take place from May 29 – June 26, 2016.

VISION

Foreign policy is no longer the sole domain of national governments and heads of state. CEOs, local governments, journalists, think tanks, NGOs, lobbyists and online activists increasingly play influential roles in international negotiations and initiatives. Foreign policy is also becoming more influenced by national pluralism and the interests of diverse sets of domestic groups. Thus, the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship will explore diversity in the broadest sense—diversity of peoples, ideas, values, institutions and practices in international relations.

Humanity in Action believes that this diversification of players in international affairs, as well as the interests they pursue, creates the need for leaders from diverse backgrounds who are able to approach global challenges in innovative ways. Humanity in Action seeks to cultivate leadership skills and knowledge in its Diplomacy and Diversity Fellows — a new group of emerging leaders who have the knowledge, creativity and ability to collaborate across borders and sectors in changing international communities.

The guiding mission of the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship is to increase understanding of pluralistic societies, awareness of the importance of diversity in diplomatic and other international fields, and the inclusion of those from minority backgrounds in international relations.

APPROACH

In the 2016 Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship, participants will discuss and research a wide range of subjects, including, but not limited to, national security and the politics of war in the United States, international development strategies, philanthropy, human rights and civil liberties in foreign policy, international trade negotiations, immigration, the refugee crisis in Europe, hate speech in digital spheres, contemporary Polish politics, European integration, security issues as well as relations between Russia and the European Union.

The Fellows will explore these subjects from local, national, transatlantic and international vantage points while also evaluating the ways in which history impacts contemporary policy. The program's sessions will introduce Fellows to both foreign policy experts and practitioners who will provide conceptual and theoretical perspectives as well as networking opportunities.

HUMANITY IN ACTION

Humanity in Action is an international organization that educates, inspires and connects a global network of established and emerging leaders committed to promoting human rights, diversity and active citizenship—in their own communities and around the world. Humanity in Action organizes educational and professional programs in Europe and the United States. Humanity in Action's offices are located in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Poland and the United States.

The Warsaw programming of the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship is organized in cooperation with the Museum of the History of Polish Jews POLIN and Menora.

THE FELLOWS

Lizbeth Arias

University of Nevada, Las Vegas

Lizbeth Arias is an Education Abroad Advisor for the Office of International Programs at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, where she is also completing her Master's in international relations. Prior to her graduate and professional work at UNLV, Lizbeth served as a Bolden Scholar for the D.C. office of Senator Harry Reid, participated in an international leadership program at the University of Liverpool in England, and pursued intensive Mandarin studies at the Southwest University for Nationalities in China. Lizbeth enjoys making pizza at home, attending concerts when she's not studying, and finding last minute flights to places she's never been.

Renata Barreto

University of California, Berkeley

Renata Barreto is a graduate student in the jurisprudence and social policy Ph.D. program at Berkeley Law. Her research focuses on international law, technology, and social movements with an emphasis on quantitative methods. She completed her undergraduate education at Reed College, where she majored in international and comparative policy studies. Renata is the recipient of the Eugene-Cota Robles Fellowship and the American Political Science Association's Minority Fellowship. Additionally, she has worked at the Public Policy Institute of California as an intern evaluating the efficacy of the state penal system's reform. She is fluent in Spanish, French, and Portuguese.

George Bogden

University of Oxford

George Bogden currently serves as a J. William Fulbright-Hillary Rodham Clinton Fellow in Kosovo. In this capacity, he is an embedded special assistant in the country's Ministry of Trade and Industry, providing support on matters pertaining to treaty succession and international commercial policy. George is also a D.Phil. candidate in international relations at the University of Oxford, where he was awarded a Clarendon Scholarship. Before beginning his graduate studies, he received his B.A. in political science from Yale, serving as the university's Fox International Fellow in Istanbul the following year. He has completed internships in the U.S. House of Representatives and the State Department, as well as in non-governmental organizations and research institutions in Washington D.C., Ankara, and Istanbul.

Tanja Dittfeld

University of East Anglia

Tanja Dittfeld has recently returned to Denmark from working in Zambia at a local partner organization to the Swedish international organization We Effect with the primary responsibility of gender mainstreaming. Prior to this position, Tanja has also lived in Uganda twice whereby the first time was to work for a local NGO as a HIV/AIDS counsellor, while the second time was to conduct a Sida-financed minor field study on the lived experiences of LGBTI individuals. In August 2015, Tanja received her MSc in development studies from Lund University in Sweden. In October 2016, Tanja is to commence her PhD studies at the School of International Development at University of East Anglia in England.

Tamikka Forbes
American University

Tamikka Forbes is a member of the U.S. Foreign Service, where she most recently served on a domestic assignment with the executive office for African Affairs. She also served overseas in Nouakchott, Mauritania. She completed her master's in international communication strategy at American University, where her research came to focus on radicalization, and preventing violent extremism. Prior to the State Department, Tamikka worked at an alternate dispute resolution firm in Los Angeles. She earned her BA in humanities from Loyola Marymount, Los Angeles. She studied previously in Germany and Brazil, and speaks French and German. She is a native Californian.

Andreas Holzinger
Sciences Po Paris and the Freie Universität Berlin

Andreas Holzinger is currently working as a part-time analyst at Roland Berger, focusing on public sector strategy consulting. He is a dual-degree Masters candidate at Sciences Po Paris and the Freie Universität Berlin in international affairs, exploring the intersection of international development and human rights. A fellow of the German National Academic Foundation, Andreas graduated with a trilingual B.A. in social sciences with honors from Sciences Po. He has held policy and research positions in both national and multilateral institutions, and volunteered with non-profits in Europe, Asia, and North America. Most recently, he conducted policy research and fieldwork in Benin and Ghana as a fellow of the Open Society Foundations, focusing on institutional reform and civil society in the sub-region.

Kyla Johnson

The George Washington University

Kyla Johnson brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship. She began her career in international development as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Mozambique where she spent three years working on HIV/AIDS and malaria outreach. After her Peace Corps service, she was selected as a 2014 LGTVP ICats Fellow, placed with Educate Girls, an NGO based in Mumbai, India. Her most recent position was with Dimagi, a social enterprise working at the intersection of international development and technology. Kyla is currently pursuing an M.A. in global communication, specializing in public diplomacy, at the Elliott School of International Affairs at The George Washington University. Kyla is a native of Detroit, Michigan.

Alen Kerić

University of Sarajevo and University of Bologna

Alen Kerić is a recent graduate with an MA in human rights and democracy in South-East Europe from the University of Sarajevo and University of Bologna. His MA thesis explored the relationship between LGBTIQ and Catholic communities in Croatia, while interning at the Women's Room, Center for Sexual Rights - Croatia's only counseling center for victims of sexual violence. Prior to his graduate studies, Alen obtained a BA in performance and media studies from Beloit College. He is socially engaged and political artist, performing in mediums of theatre, dance and performance art. His current general interests include studies on identity, race, class, gender, performativity, refugees, Islamophobia and corporate social responsibility. He was born and raised in Konjic, Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin.

PROGRAM SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON

>> SUNDAY, MAY 29: WELCOME TO WASHINGTON AND HUMANITY IN ACTION

The Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship begins with two Humanity in Action traditions. The first is dinner at the home of Judy and Stanley Hallet in northwest Washington. Judy and Stanley — both longtime supporters of Humanity in Action — have hosted opening dinners for our Fellows for more than a decade. Stanley, an architect, and Judy, a documentary filmmaker, examine artistic, social and environmental conditions through their creative work. The second tradition is called “Bring An Object.” In this exercise, the Fellows and staff members introduce themselves by showing and explaining an object that illustrates the individual’s connection to Humanity in Action’s issues — human rights, diversity or international affairs. The objects and stories can be funny, poignant or anything in between.

*Location: Home of Judy and Stanley Hallet
(4542 28th Street, NW)*

17:15 Arrival

17:15 – 18:30 Introductions and drinks

Judith S. Goldstein, Anthony Chase,
Monika Mazur-Rafał, Antje Scheidler and
Carlos Gonzalez (Humanity in Action)

19:00 - 20:30 Dinner

>> MONDAY, MAY 30 (MEMORIAL DAY): AMERICAN POWER AND MYTHS

Our program begins on Memorial Day with an exploration of American power and American myths — seen both from afar and from Washington. We are concerned here with the central concepts, myths and truths that make up the ‘Idea of America’ as a beacon — or failure — of liberal democracy. In the morning, we will contemplate American wealth and poverty seen through the groundbreaking photography and life of Jacob A. Riis — now on show at the opulent Library of Congress. Riis’s photographs captured the extreme poverty of New York’s tenements at the beginning of the 20th Century and also undermined two prevailing myths of American society, namely, the myth of American opportunity and the myth of the United States as a nation that uncategorically welcomed immigrants. In the afternoon, Judith S. Goldstein will discuss the paradox of American exceptionalism. David E. Sanger, the chief Washington correspondent for The New York Times, will then turn to contemporary affairs to discuss Washington as a powerhub and the challenges and limits to American power, especially under the Obama administration. DeLessin “Roo” George Warren will join us by video to introduce our next site visit — his inventive audio tour of the Presidential Portrait Gallery that reframes U.S. history to consider the systematic oppression of indigenous peoples. We will end the evening with a dinner with Humanity in Action Senior Fellows who live in Washington and work in law, policy, development and other fields.

*Location: Library of Congress, Thomas Jefferson Building
(10 First Street, SE; second floor)*

11:10 Arrival

11:30 - 12:30 Site Visit: Tour of exhibition “Jacob Riis:
Revealing ‘How the Other Half Lives’”

>> TUESDAY, MAY 31: WAR AND MEMORY

U.S. foreign relations have largely been defined by national security, military might and concepts of regional and global leadership. On the second day of our programming, we will turn our attention to security, memory and the changing attitudes of Americans toward military engagement abroad. We will begin at the Smithsonian Museum of American History by catching a glimpse of the Star-Spangled Banner, the enormous garrison flag that flew over Fort McHenry in Baltimore during the War of 1812 with the British and would later become an American icon. We will then tour parts of an expansive exhibit on Americans at war beginning with the Vietnam war. While in the exhibit, think about the interplay between military engagement abroad and domestic affairs and cultural change at home. Think of the museum as the official showcase of American history. What kind of story does the U.S. government want to tell? We will then walk across the National Mall to meet Paul D. Spreiregen to view the Lincoln and Vietnam Veterans memorials and to discuss the memorialization of complex wartime histories and spatial design in Washington more broadly; Spreiregen is an architect who supervised the design competition for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. We will then turn to questions of civil liberties and counterterrorism in modern warfare and particular policy changes under recent U.S. administrations with Kate Martin, a scholar who has worked on these issues since well before 9/11.

*Location: Smithsonian National Museum of American History
(14th Street and Constitution Avenue, NW)*

Center for American Progress)

16:30 – 17:30 Group Discussion led by Jennifer Kuklenski and Roya Talibova

>> WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1: DEVELOPMENT AND HUMAN RIGHTS

We will examine issues in development from three particular perspectives. First, we will meet with Nageeb Sumar of the Gates Foundation to discuss the influence of private wealth in international development. How can philanthropists tackle challenges that governments cannot address? What democratic questions of governance do these dynamics raise? We will explore a particular case at the intersection of human rights and development — the cost of homophobia for economic development — with a discussion with Randy W. Berry, the first-ever U.S. Special Envoy for the Human Rights of LGBTI Persons, and a panel of experts from government, international finance and civil society. In the afternoon, we will turn to local challenges in development by visiting Anacostia, an economically depressed neighborhood of the District of Columbia. We will view a major exhibit at the Smithsonian Anacostia Community Museum about the period of economic, political and social change in Washington in the 1960s and 70s with Marjorie Lightman, one of the curators of the exhibit.

*Location: Stewart R. Mott Foundation

 Dr. Marjorie Lightman (Partner, QED Associates)

>> THURSDAY, JUNE 2: DIPLOMACY AND ETHICS

Thursday, June 2, is devoted to examining moral questions and ethical dilemmas in diplomacy and leadership. We will meet with Carl Gettinger, a former Foreign Service Officer, whose postings in El Salvador and Iraq forced him to confront the differences in his values and the interests of larger institutions. William Keyes will speak about the daily ethical dilemmas faced in leadership and will lead a discussion about what challenges our group is already confronting in our individual professional lives. In the afternoon, we will return to diplomacy by speaking with Arsalan Suleman whose office in the U.S. Department of State seeks to engage religious groups, particularly Muslim communities, in the U.S. foreign policy process. In the evening, we will reconvene for a group dinner at Dukem, an Ethiopian restaurant which has become a Washington landmark.

Location: Goethe-Institut Washington (1990 K Street, NW)

- 9:45 Arrival
- 10:00 – 11:30 The Moral of the Story: An American Diplomat in Troubled Spots
Carl Gettinger (former Foreign Service Officer, U.S. Department of State)

15:30 – 16:30 Group discussion led by Lizbeth Arias and John Scott

16:30 – 18:00 Presentations and discussions of Fellows' research

Location: Dukem Ethiopian Restaurant (1114 - 1118 U Street)

19:00 Dinner

>> FRIDAY, JUNE 3: ISSUES IN THE 2016 ELECTION

On Friday, June 3 — the closing day of our Washington programming — we turn to the U.S. election and will discuss the international ramifications of U.S. domestic politics. Among several other critical issues, we will address three core concerns — international trade, immigration and the crisis within the Republican party. We will start by discussing the radical change in political culture concerning international trade deals with Lori Wallach, one of the foremost experts on trade in the United States, who directs a division of Public Citizen, a consumer advocacy organization founded by Ralph Nader. Angela Maria Kelley, an immigration expert at the Center for American Progress, will lead a discussion about the contentious politics of immigration in the presidential election. We will take a diversion in the middle of the day to consider a different (s)election — the selection of a new Secretary General of the U.N. with Mark Goldberg, a Humanity in Action Senior Fellow. Finally, we will meet with Alexis Levinson, a reporter with The National Review, one of the most influential conservative magazines in the country, to discuss the state of the U.S. presidential race and what a Trump presidency might mean both for the future of U.S. foreign relations and the Republican Party.

BERLIN

>> SUNDAY, JUNE 5, 2016: WELCOME TO BERLIN AND HUMANITY IN ACTION GERMANY

The arrival day in Berlin offers an excursion into the time of the Cold War when the German capital was still divided by the Berlin Wall. The open air exhibition, “Berlin Wall Memorial,” extends along almost a mile of the former border strip and conveys an impression of how the border fortifications developed until the end of the 1980s. We will get a better understanding of the history of Germany’s division. The evening presentation with Henry Alt-Haaker, a Humanity in Action Senior Fellow and Board Member, will address Germany’s current political structure and discourses to pave the ground for the coming days.

The programming from 16:30 – 18:30 is optional.

>> MONDAY, JUNE 6, 2016: EXCURSION INTO HISTORY

During the Berlin part of the program, the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship will have its temporary home base in the women's cooperative WeiberWirtschaft, which has been assisting women in establishing their own businesses for two decades. Women entrepreneurs have benefited from comprehensive start-up and business management support, direct communication channels and the opportunities arising from close networking and collaboration made available through the cooperative arrangement. Before moving to current affairs, we will discuss Germany's colonial past, a topic that is often forgotten but needs to be addressed in order to fully grasp the subsequent historical periods. In the evening, Dr. Dirk Schmalenbach, Chairman of the German Board of Directors, and his wife, Alexandra Erhoff, will welcome us in their home. This will be good opportunity to meet with board members, several of whom are also Humanity in Action Senior Fellows.

*Location: Women's Business Center, Room 5 – rooftop

>> TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 2016: REMEMBRANCE IN GERMANY AND ANTISEMITISM

Half of the day will be devoted to exploring one of the central areas of Berlin with a number of memorials dedicated to the victims of the Nazi dictatorship. This part of German history — the Second World War, the Shoah, the persecution and murder of political opponents and many minority groups — has been formative for German identity for the last several generations. We hope that visiting the memorials will enable us to reflect on various means of expressing remembrance and the educational impact on its visitors. In the evening, we will discuss contemporary antisemitism, a phenomenon that the Fundamental Rights Agency of the European Union (FRA) has researched with a survey. The results, published in 2013, stated that “two thirds of respondents to FRA’s survey on discrimination and hate crimes against Jews in eight EU Member States considered antisemitism to be a problem in the EU country they live in. Three quarters of respondents said that antisemitism had worsened over the past five years. Respondents also reported incidents of violence and harassment.”

Nikola Gillhoff (Vice Special Representative for Relations with Jewish Organizations and Issues relating to Antisemitism, Federal Foreign Office)

18:30 – 18:45 Wrap-up of the day

>> WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8, 2016: HISTORY'S IMPACT ON FOREIGN POLICY AND VISIT TO THE BUNDESTAG

After having dealt with different periods of Germany's history, the leading question today will be how this history has shaped Germany's foreign policy. What lessons has Germany learned and applied to its interactions with other countries, nations and supranational entities? What choices in international relations can be seen against the background of Germany's history? Who could be a better speaker to discuss these questions with us than Dr. Klaus Scharioth, who was a member of the German Foreign Service for more than 35 years (1976-2011) and who served from 2006-2011 as German Ambassador to the United States? In the afternoon, we will visit Berlin's powerhub, the German Bundestag, where we will meet with Dr. Karamba Diaby, a Member of Parliament from East Germany. He focuses on social unity in East and West Germany, advancement through education as well as the promotion of diversity as an asset. By learning about Dr. Diaby's political career, we will get an insider's perspective on various political dynamics and discourses in German society. Visiting the dome of the Reichstag — especially in the evening — provides a spectacular view over the city.

In the evening, Humanity in Action will host a public lecture by Konstanty Gebert, a journalist from Poland and a special advisor on international affairs with Humanity in Action. He will share his perspectives on the political and practical realities of what Europe today refers to as its 'refugee crisis.' Convinced that mass population movements will continue to form part of Europe's reality, Gebert will speak about the significance these movements have and will have on our understanding of 'ownership' and 'rights.'

>> THURSDAY, JUNE 9, 2016: SEEKING REFUGE AND ASYLUM IN EUROPE

Humanity in Action runs parallel Fellowship programs. This day is dedicated to bringing the Fellows from the Berlin Fellowship and the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship together. We will take a closer look at the challenges that the current migration flows pose and discuss various responses from within society — from volunteering to hate speech, from the welcome culture to discrimination.

The Humanity in Action network is international by nature and Berlin is a permanent, temporary or transitory home for many alumni. Therefore the evening is reserved for networking and continued conversations with Humanity in Action Senior Fellows.

>> FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 2016: PROTECTING CULTURAL PROPERTY

The images of recently destroyed or damaged cultural property in Syria were deeply disturbing and added another dimension — a cultural heritage perspective — to the Syrian civil war. Today, we will be visiting Berlin's Archeological Centre and discuss the issue with two experts — representing both academic and policy perspectives. We will view some ancient cuneiform artifacts. The afternoon is dedicated to working on the articles that all Fellows write as a requirement of the fellowship program. Our in-house editor, Johannes Lukas Gartner from the German office, will join us for the session. In the evening, the Gallery Kai Dikhas invites us for a vernissage featuring the work of David Weiss. The gallery is specialized in Romani and Sinti contemporary art.

>> SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 2016: AFTERNOON SKILLS WORKSHOP

Speaking in public, addressing unknown or large audiences, is reason for many to feel uneasy. However, public speaking is a crucial tool in many professions and one of the keys to success. The training session on June 11 aims to help with understanding and practicing the four most important pillars (attention, meaning, multi-sensory and emotion) needed to maximize one's impact when speaking to an audience. At the end of the training, participants will have an understanding of their preferred communication style and they will have gained awareness on how to connect with various audiences to leave a lasting impression. The workshop is exercise intensive and covers the importance of structure, voice, body language, presence and the use of multi-sensory/emotionally stimulating communication.

*Location: Women's Business Center, Room 5 – rooftop
(Anklamer Str. 38, 10115 Berlin; 1st yard, 2nd entrance,

 Hosted by Janusz Reiter and Eugeniusz Smolar (Board Members, Humanity in Action Poland)

>> WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15: POLAND TODAY

The program in Warsaw consists of two interrelated parts referring to the key subjects of diplomacy and diversity. The first programming day focuses on the role of Poland in the region and its foreign policy priorities after 1989, which will be presented by Eugeniusz Smolar, a foreign policy expert and one of Humanity in Action's Polish board members. Special attention will be devoted to the shift in Polish foreign policy after the last parliamentary elections in November 2015. Konstanty Gebert, a journalist and Humanity in Action advisor, will discuss the successes and failures in Poland's systemic transformation. Poland used to be acknowledged as a country of successful transformation into democracy as a market economy with civil society. But the transition was not free from mistakes and people were left alone in a completely new reality for which they were not prepared. Thus, some Poles contested the post-solidarity reality. This frustration was visible in the last parliamentary elections, in which the Law and Justice Party won with a significant majority of seats enabling it to form a one-party government. After the fellows discussion, we will explore Warsaw looking for traces of the past in today's urban landscape.

>> THURSDAY, JUNE 16: WAR AND MEMORY: IMPACT OF LOST DIVERSITY

The goal of the day is to explore the relevance of the Second World War and the Holocaust for contemporary Poland. We will start the day with a meeting with Professor Kirshenblatt-Gimblett, who had a leading role in designing the core exhibition of the Museum of the History of Polish Jews POLIN. The exhibit presents Poles and Jews living together over centuries with periods of cooperation and periods of immense challenges. Due to the Holocaust, shifting borders, mass movements during and after the war, socialist Poland was installed as an ethnically homogenous country. The regime presented itself as a positive feature and tried to destroy any form of diversity. Over 44 years, the society has been living in a closed country. Only after systems changed in 1989, was it already officially acknowledged that minority representatives are welcomed in free Poland. Since then, we observe a growing interest in different cultures as well as efforts to revive lost diversity coming back to the roots of a prewar multicultural society. There is, however, also a trend to perceive low but growing diversity as a risk for the society. Low levels of diversity can also be a challenge as was visible during the last election campaign and the debate on receiving refugees from the crisis areas in the Middle East, when there was a wave of frustration, intolerance and hate speech in public and private discussions among Poles. In the last session, we will explore the challenges resulting from the rise of the extreme in Europe with Larry Olomofe from ODIHR.

Networking Dinner with Senior Fellows

>> FRIDAY, JUNE 17: BORDERS, SECURITY & DIPLOMACY

Poland with its geopolitical situation between the East and West, Germany and Russia has long been exposed to security threats. Therefore, after 1989, security of borders, especially with Germany, was the key issue. In turn, Germany as a major exporter has been deeply interested in enlarging the security zone. Thus, both countries had a mutual interest in developing their friendly relations beyond the heritage of the Second World War. Janusz Reiter, who was at that time Ambassador of Poland to Germany, was actively engaged in this reconciliation process. Later on Germany became an advocate of Poland in EU structures, which was instrumental for Poland's EU accession. Next, Poland as the EU member state is also interested in enlarging its security zone. It supports Ukraine in its EU ambitions and in transforming the country into a democracy and a market economy. Ambassador Magdziak-Miszewska will talk about relations between Poland and Ukraine, challenging proximity to Russia and will also focus on the Ukrainian crisis. Beyond bilateral relations, Poland is also responsible for securing the EU's external borders. Finally, the refugee crisis in Europe made clear how unprepared the EU as a whole was to such types of changes, also due to different expectations of its member states. Ewa Moncure will present the mandate of Frontex, the European Agency for the Management of Operational Cooperation at the External Borders of the Member States of the European Union, and its actions, which exemplifies challenges in reaching a compromise among EU member states and their different interests.

>> SUNDAY, JUNE 19: DAY OFF

>> MONDAY, JUNE 20: SECURITY V. HUMAN RIGHTS

Apart from traditional security challenges, modern democracies face new forms of threats to their stability and prosperity. In the globalized world the new 'battlefields' are (among others) the internet and movements of people. Thus, Agnieszka Kosowicz will present the discourse in Poland regarding a possible reception of refugees and the real facts and figures. What role have Poland's international agreements played? Mrs. Kosowicz will also present the challenges of the refugees living in Poland for some time already. Next, Katarzyna Szymielewicz will engage us into a conversation about potential infringements of privacy rights and ways of preserving the ownership over own private data in the age of social media. The last session touches upon the controversy in Polish public life on the cooperation of Poland's highest authorities with the CIA in conducting interrogation of alleged terrorists involved in 9/11. This cooperation included the use of torture – in violation to the Polish Constitution and binding international agreements signed by Poland. There will be a panel discussion of Mrs. Grabowska-Moroz and Mrs. Piasecka on how to draw a line between security and human rights.

ATHENS

>> THURSDAY, JUNE 22 – SATURDAY, JUNE 25: HUMANITY IN ACTION INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE IN ATHENS, GREECE

We will depart from Warsaw and travel to Athens with the 2016 Humanity in Action Fellows of the Warsaw Program.

The Humanity in Action International Conference is the annual gathering of Humanity in Action Fellows, Senior Fellows, Board members, friends and partner organizations.

The Seventh Annual International Conference, titled “Europe at a Crossroads: Voices from Athens,” will investigate a range of critical issues concerning Greece’s political and economic situations. Over the course of four days, the conference will examine Greece’s position at the forefront of multiple intersecting crises – foremost the migration crisis, as Greece is the first destination for hundreds of thousands of migrants and refugees, as well as a hub for human trafficking. The conference will also address Greece’s financial crisis, as the country’s institutions and civil society continue to fracture under the pressure of the recession in Europe and the country’s ties to the European Union.

The conference will include keynotes, discussions and workshops with leading Greek and international experts. It will also feature the annual Senior Fellow Reunion Dinner, skills training sessions, networking opportunities and tours within Athens.

Please refer to the conference program booklet for a detailed schedule and speaker biographies.

>> SUNDAY, JUNE 26: DEPARTURE FROM ATHENS

The International Conference and the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship formally conclude on the evening of June 25. Fellows will make their journeys back to their home cities beginning in the morning of June 26.

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHIES

JOSHUA KWESI AIKINS

Joshua Kwesi Aikins is a political scientist at Kassel University and a PhD candidate in History and Sociology at the Bielefeld Graduate School. His research interests include the interaction between western-style and indigenous political institutions in Ghana, post- and decolonial perspectives on ‘development,’ cultural and political representation of the African Diaspora, coloniality and the politics of memory in Germany. As an academic and activist, he is involved in various projects in both Germany and Ghana. As a Policy Officer with Diakonie Bundesverband, he was tasked with coordinating and presenting the parallel report to Germany’s state report to the United Nations Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination in May 2015. As a member of the Initiative Schwarze Menschen in Deutschland (Initiative of Black People in Germany), he works in both policy analysis and lobbying, advocating for data collection toward tracing, proving and combating the effects of institutional racism. He is involved in antiracist organising, diaspora empowerment and the ongoing struggle for a decolonial renaming of Berlin streets and a shift from colonial to anti- and decolonial commemoration in and beyond the German capital. In Ghana, his involvement spans conceptual and policy work, from serving as associate researcher for the Ghana Constitution Review Commission and to the development and scientific lead for Ghana Vote Compass, Ghana’s first Voter advice application for the December 2012 elections.

RAMY AL ASHEQ

Ramy Al-Asheq is a Syrian-Palestinian poet and journalist. He is the editor-in-chief of Abwab Newspaper (www.abwab.de), the first Arabic newspaper in Germany, the cultural editor of Freedomraise Magazine (www.freedomraise.net), “an independent magazine interested in affairs of Syria, the Syrian Revolution, Syrians, refugees and their issues, published in print and electronically, distributed inside Syria and in Syrian refugee camps.” He issued his first book “Walking on Dreams” in 2014 which is a poetry book about the Syrian revolution, then earned a grant for full-time writing of the Heinrich Böll Foundation in Germany. Ramy Al-Asheq writes for many Arabic and German newspapers and publications. He has been living in Germany since November 2014 and is a resident of Cologne.

HENRY ALT-HAAKER

Henry Alt-Haaker participated in the Humanity in Action Fellowship Program in 2005 as a Fellow in the Berlin program and has remained engaged with Humanity in Action since as a member and chair of the German and European Senior Fellow Networks and various other Humanity in Action bodies. Currently he serves as a Member of the Board of Humanity in Action Germany. After studying Philosophy and German Literature in Berlin (Humboldt University), Paris (Sorbonne Paris 1) and Saint Louis (Washington University), he completed a second Master's Degree in Public Policy (on the labor market integration of the second generation in Germany) at the Hertie School of Governance in Berlin. As a teenager in Frankfurt (Oder) in the former GDR, Alt-Haaker observed xenophobia and intolerance daily. His exposure to discrimination while growing up inspired him to have a positive impact on society. Alt-Haaker has been active in numerous voluntary initiatives fighting racism, corruption and other societal wrongs. He has worked as a political officer at the Canadian Embassy in Berlin, for several Members of Parliament in the Bundestag, was the Manager of Sabine Leutheusser-Schnarrenberger — formerly Germany's Minister of Justice — and currently works on conflict prevention and conflict transformation as a Program Officer for the Robert Bosch Stiftung in Berlin, one of the biggest private foundations in Germany.

CARL GETTINGER

Hugo Carl Gettinger (known as Carl) is from San Diego, California. He became interested in the Foreign Service at the age of 15 when he had to write a high school essay on what he wanted to do in life. He became a Foreign Service Officer in March 1979, soon after graduating from San Diego State University where he majored in history. His first assignment was to Santiago, Chile, as a consular officer. His main interest, however, was political work and in Santiago he moonlighted for the political section of the embassy, working with individuals and groups opposed to the regime of Augusto Pinochet. In 1980 he responded to a call for volunteers to serve in San Salvador, El Salvador and was assigned as a political officer, arriving there in July of that year. There he worked closely with the Christian Democratic Party and the Catholic Church and travelled extensively to assess political and social conditions throughout the country. He was in El Salvador for two years, then briefly in October 1983, then again for five months in 1984. He worked on El Salvador issues in the Office of Central American Affairs at the State Department from 1984 to 1986. He then chose to take a different path, studying Japanese and then going to Japan as a political and political/military officer for a total of 12 years in Tokyo, Okinawa, Nagoya, and Yokohama. His Japan tours were interrupted by three years in Argentina in the mid 1990s. He left his assignment as the chief of political/military affairs in Tokyo early in 2005 to go to Mosul, Iraq as the head of the State Department's operations in northern Iraq. He ended his career in 2009, his last assignment as the political/military chief in Islamabad, Pakistan. His post retirement assignments were again in Islamabad and in Bogota, Colombia. During 30 years as a Foreign Service Officer Carl was awarded the Averell Harriman Award and the FBI award "For Service in the Public Interest" for his work in identifying and bringing to justice the killers of four American churchwomen in El Salvador in 1980 as well as the State Department's Superior Honor Award and five Meritorious Honor Awards. Carl is married to Julia Fendrick, also a Foreign Service Officer, and he will soon follow her to Paris where she will be the Counselor for Cultural Affairs. Julia is a Public Affairs Officer and has served in Tokyo, Copenhagen, Islamabad, Rome and Tripoli. Carl and Julia have three grown children, a son and two daughters.

ABOUT HUMANITY IN ACTION

Humanity in Action is an international organization that educates, inspires, and connects a network of university students and young professionals committed to promoting human rights, pluralism, and active citizenship in their own communities and around the world.

Humanity in Action has educated over 1,500 young leaders in their 20s and 30s who now form a unique international alumni community committed to social justice. Through its diverse programs as well as partnerships with outstanding institutions, such as The National Center for Civil and Human Rights, Inc. (Atlanta), The New School (New York), and the POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews (Warsaw), Humanity in Action contributes in innovative ways to advance human rights and democratic freedoms.

The annual Humanity in Action Fellowship brings together more than 130 American and European university students and young professionals in programs in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Poland, and the United States. Humanity in Action Fellows meet with leading experts and activists to study historical as well as contemporary cases of institutional violations of human and minority rights. They explore how and why individuals and societies, past and present, have resisted intolerance and protected democratic values. As part of the Humanity in Action Fellowship, the Fellows write research-based articles, develop teaching tools, and implement hands-on civil society projects to share what they learned in their programs.

Humanity in Action supports all Fellows financially for the duration of their programs, allowing for the merit-based selection of diverse applicants. Humanity in Action also provides professional development opportunities as well as funding for civil society initiatives. It maintains an active international network of students, young professionals, established leaders, experts, and partners, for which it organizes a range of educational and career opportunities, including seminars, workshops, study trips, and fellowship positions at leading civic and political institutions, including the European Parliament and the United States Congress. These opportunities encourage emerging leaders to develop their professional abilities and introduce established leaders to the ideas of the younger generation.

Humanity in Action's network of leaders is a valuable resource to policymakers, diplomats, educators, business leaders, and civic-minded individuals and organizations. By the end of the decade, Humanity in Action will have connected over 2,500 professionals working in all sectors, on a range of critical issues, in countries around the world.

Humanity in Action is a non-profit, non-partisan organization with governing and advisory boards in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Poland, and the United States. The international headquarters of the organization is in New York City.

Major supporters of Humanity in Action have included the Ford Foundation; the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation; the Richard and Rhoda Goldman Fund; the Germeshausen Foundation; the Stavros Niarchos Foundation; Open Society Foundations; the Hurford Foundation; Foundation Remembrance, Responsibility and Future (EVZ); the William H. Donner Foundation; the Fetzer Institute; the Dutch Ministry for Health, Welfare and Sport; the Polish Foreign Ministry; and the U.S. Department of State.

STAFF BIOGRAPHIES

Anthony Chase

Director of Programs

Anthony Chase serves as Director of Programs at Humanity in Action in New York City where he focuses on organizational strategy and program development. In this role, he and Judy Goldstein developed the Diplomacy and Diversity Fellowship from a nascent idea to a multinational educational initiative that has engaged nearly 400 emerging and established foreign policy experts. When Anthony joined Humanity in Action in 2013 as a Program Coordinator, he produced a program in Cairo and New York on human rights and politics in Egypt since the Arab Spring.

Anthony previously worked in Paris as a Project Manager for Bibliothèques Sans Frontières and now serves on the Board of Directors of the organization's US branch, Libraries Without Borders. He is a highest honors graduate of the University of Michigan where he was as a research assistant in urban planning, public policy and African studies departments. Anthony is a Humanity in Action Senior Fellow (France 2011), a Founding Member of the Centre for Social Innovation and a native of Kalamazoo, Michigan. He is passionate about politics, cultural history, wordplay and cities—especially Detroit.

Monika Mazur-Rafał

President of the Managing Board and National Director (Poland)

Winston Churchill once said that attitude is a little thing that makes a big difference. Having witnessed systemic changes in Poland, Monika became fascinated by politics and studied international relations with a focus on German studies and European integration. As her interests were broad, she graduated with two master's diplomas from the Warsaw University and Warsaw School of Economics/Sciences Politiques Paris. Later on, Monika took part in international exchange programs, first at Free University Berlin and then at Humboldt University Berlin combined with working at one of the parliamentary offices in the German Bundestag. Subsequently she wanted to find ways of putting the gained knowledge into practice, she started working at a think-tank — the Center for International Relations, and after that she worked at the International Organization for Migration, where she was a project coordinator and a researcher on migration policy issues.

Since 2005 Monika was involved in developing Humanity in Action Fellowship in Poland and subsequently established Humanity in Action Poland. Since then, she has been responsible for leading its educational programs and serves as its President and Director. Over the years, while leading Humanity in Action Poland, she developed special interest in the field of linking history and human rights education, and thanks to practice and dialogue with other experts from Poland and Europe, she built substantial expertise in designing teaching methods and practical curricula. In her very limited spare time, she enjoys reading, diving and snowboarding. Monika is a passionate dancer.

Antje Scheidler

National Director (Germany) and International Director of European Programs

Antje Scheidler has been with Humanity in Action since 2002, when she became Program Director of the newly established German fellowship program. Antje was born in East Germany and has lived in Berlin for almost her entire life, where she experienced the fall of the Berlin Wall as a teenager. She studied English and American Studies, Sociology and Political Science at Humboldt University Berlin and at the University of Toronto. She shares a great interest in immigration-related issues and matters of social cohesion. Antje was a researcher at Humboldt University in the Department of Demography from 2000 to 2007 and the Editor-in-Chief of the newsletter “Migration und Bevölkerung” from 2000 to 2011.

Since 2007 Antje has been the National Director of the German chapter of Humanity in Action. She is now the International Director of European Programs of the organization and among other things facilitates the transatlantic communication between the Humanity in Action chapters on both sides of the Atlantic. Her focus areas have been the Annual International Conferences, the organization’s outreach to Greece as well as Grant Competitions for Humanity in Action Senior Fellows. Apart from enjoying family life with her two daughters, Antje enjoys long-distance running and she recently discovered a passion for yoga.

Carlos Adolfo Gonzalez Sierra

Program Intern

Born in the Dominican Republic and raised in the United States, Carlos Adolfo Gonzalez Sierra is a passionate scholar, speaker and advocate. He overcame undocumented status to graduate summa cum laude from Amherst College with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Interdisciplinary U.S. Latino Studies. Gonzalez Sierra has engaged voters in immigrant communities in Chicago, IL, worked as a Lantos fellow in Washington, DC, and assisted newly arrived refugees to become economically self-sufficient in Lancaster, PA. He also helped organize the first statewide conference of undocumented youth in Pennsylvania and led advocacy efforts for the Pennsylvania DREAM Act, a bill which would increase access to higher education for undocumented youth in the state. He is currently a Gates Cambridge Scholar pursuing an M.Phil. in Latin American Studies at the University of Cambridge in the United Kingdom. He is also an inaugural recipient of a Schwarzman Scholarship to pursue a Master's in Global Affairs at Tsinghua University in Beijing, China later this year.
