Dear Friends:

It is my pleasure to congratulate and welcome all of the participants of The John Lewis Fellowship Program, a Humanity in Action Fellowship in partnership with The National Center for Civil and Human Rights.

You are an exceptional group of young people. I hope that the knowledge and relationships you gain from this fellowship will develop you into the change agents that our society so desperately needs. We are at a pivotal time in our history. The lessons of the past mean more than ever now. It is my hope that your participation in this incredible fellowship, will spark that light in you that makes you the headlight and not the taillight in the future of our world.

May you have a wonderful time during your stay here in the beautiful city of Atlanta and I wish you continued success in your pursuit of justice and equality for all.

With all good wishes,

John Lewis
Member of Congress
Dear Friends:

It is an honor to share with you this document of our dreams, ambitions and plans for the 2019 John Lewis Fellowship. On the pages that follow, you will see an agenda intended to cultivate a fertile ground for compassion, creative expression, and deeply collaborative learning around some of the most urgent issues of our time.

Atlanta and the wider US South are special landscapes for experiential inquiry into the nature and long-term effects of structural oppression. But these landscapes also serve as beacons, retreats and sites of struggle for all who would fellowship together to resist the mire of defeat. To fellowship is to gather and build friendship toward a purposeful end. The fundamental purpose of the John Lewis Fellowship is to nurture understanding and civil dialogue through community formation. In times of trial, fellowship is ever more crucial.

John Lewis once wrote that “ours is the struggle of a lifetime - maybe many lifetimes - and each one of us in every generation must do our part.” His words ring as true and clear as ever. With the lessons learned and friendships made this July, may we ready ourselves for a new generational struggle toward the manifestation of a universal peace, justice and joy that animates our wildest aspiration for humankind.

In peace and solidarity,

Kali-Ahset Amen
Director, John Lewis Fellowship
Humanity in Action - Atlanta
The John Lewis Fellowship in Atlanta is one of Humanity in Action’s six annual Fellowship programs. In partnership with The National Center for Civil and Human Rights, Inc., Humanity in Action brings together a group of European and US university students and recent graduates for an intensive program about the civil rights movement and current human rights challenges in the US. The program honors Congressman John Lewis, an icon of the Civil Rights Movement.

The John Lewis Fellowship looks at the regional experiences, cultures and institutions of the US South through a different thematic lens every year. The 2019 Fellowship will place a greater emphasis on community engagement with the Atlanta public through this year’s theme, “Grassroots Solidarities: Interrogating the Past and Navigating the Present to Prepare for the Future.”

The Fellowship will illuminate strategies of allyship and unified action for advancing social equity and racial justice. As such, the Fellowship provides cooperative leadership development in support of the future professional and activist work of the Fellows.

This year the John Lewis Fellowship brings together a group of 24 young people who are passionate about civic engagement, human rights, social justice, equity and democratic values. Fellows based in or from the US will learn alongside Fellows from Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, Germany, Greece, the Netherlands and Poland.

24 NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL FELLOWS
The 2019 theme for the Humanity in Action John Lewis Fellowship in Atlanta is “Grassroots Solidarities: Interrogating the Past and Navigating the Present to Prepare for the Future.” From July 1 – 31, the John Lewis Fellows will take part in collaborative experiential learning through dialogue reflection problem-solving and service around the question: How do solidarities coalesce and coalitions form across cleavages of race, culture, sex, class and region?

Since the earliest European colonial conquests in the Americas, Indigenous and African peoples fought for freedom by making common cause with each other and by forging unity of purpose within their own ranks. The anti-slavery and civil rights movements that extended those traditions likewise relied on multiracial cross-class and transnational solidarities to accomplish hard-won political reforms. Today, despite reactionary backlash against them, struggles for freedom and justice are once again on the upswing in the United States. From Black Lives Matter and the #MeToo movement to the DREAMers movement and the March for Our Lives, various stakeholders are speaking up and talking back to the systemic intimidation and violence that has marginalized certain populations within and beyond the US.
As these movements press forward, history reminds us that social change is difficult and often slow. Change is seldom the result of a single event or the labors of a solitary figure or group. Rather, enduring social transformation requires cultural change and people-power forged through the simultaneous efforts of many groups working across social lines.

Coalitions involve diverse individuals or member groups creating a unifying identity and common purpose to achieve a shared goal. Coalitions tend to be tactical agreements between organizations, while solidarities reflect bonds of unity within or across groups. Instead of focusing on the issues that divide, the 2019 John Lewis Fellowship program emphasizes the ties that bind in order to understand why coalitions emerge, what their internal “cultures” are, what makes them effective, and why they at times fall apart. At essence, the Fellowship theme is designed to illuminate the potentialities of allyship solidarity and unified action among diverse identity class and interest groups. To this end, The John Lewis Fellows will explore robust examples from the past and the present of coalition building in Atlanta and elsewhere in the region that can inform their own allied work for human rights, culture change, and democratic inclusion. Centering our inquiry on historical and contemporary resistance to systemic racism in the US South and foregrounding the solidarity formation of ordinary working people, The John Lewis Fellows will encounter the major participants, strategies and tactics of coalitional organizing in the region, including exemplars of arts-based civic engagement, immigrant integration, prison reform, rural development, electoral mobilization, interfaith collaboration and environmental economic and housing rights advocacy. As our geographical home base, Atlanta’s particular history of inter-racial conflict and reconciliation provides an essential departure and site of deep involvement with these concerns.

In addition, Fellowship participants will take their learning on-the-road for excursions beyond Atlanta where they will learn about different communities of practice that are growing today’s justice movements. Fellows will learn directly from women and men of color and their allies, who stand up for social and economic equity through education, artistic expression and advocacy surrounding the issues that most impact their lives.
John Lewis Fellows will also have several opportunities in Atlanta to build personal leadership capacity through service learning and skills workshops. The workshops, which are intended to support the conceptualization and design of Fellows’ Action Projects, include practical training in project planning, campaign development, media production, participatory and applied research and group/dialogue facilitation.

Ultimately, John Lewis Fellows will leave Atlanta better equipped to examine their own internalized prejudice, analyze structural injustice from different group standpoints and advance change in their local communities through the power and promise of alliance building and coalitional organizing.
John Lewis has been called “the conscience of the U.S. Congress,” and Roll Call magazine has said, “John Lewis...is a genuine American hero and moral leader who commands widespread respect in the chamber.”

He was born the son of sharecroppers on February 21, 1940, outside of Troy, Alabama. He grew up on his family’s farm and attended segregated public schools in Pike County, Alabama. As a young boy, he was inspired by the activism surrounding the Montgomery Bus Boycott and the words of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., which he heard on radio broadcasts. In those pivotal moments, he made a decision to become a part of the Civil Rights Movement. Ever since then, he has remained at the vanguard of progressive social movements and the human rights struggle in the United States.

As a student at Fisk University, John Lewis organized sit-in demonstrations at segregated lunch counters in Nashville, Tennessee. In 1961, he volunteered to participate in the Freedom Rides, which challenged segregation at interstate bus terminals across the South. Lewis risked his life on those Rides many times by simply sitting in seats reserved for white patrons. He was also beaten severely by angry mobs and arrested by police for challenging the injustice of Jim Crow segregation in the South.

During the height of the Movement, from 1963 to 1966, Lewis was named Chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), which he helped form. SNCC was largely responsible for organizing student activism in the Movement, including sit-ins and other activities.
While still a young man, John Lewis became a nationally recognized leader. By 1963, he was dubbed one of the Big Six leaders of the Civil Rights Movement. At the age of 23, he was an architect of and a keynote speaker at the historic March on Washington in August 1963.

In 1964, John Lewis coordinated SNCC efforts to organize voter registration drives and community action programs during the Mississippi Freedom Summer. The following year, Lewis helped spearhead one of the most seminal moments of the Civil Rights Movement. Hosea Williams, another notable Civil Rights leader, and John Lewis led over 600 peaceful, orderly protestors across the Edmund Pettus Bridge in Selma, Alabama on March 7, 1965. They intended to march from Selma to Montgomery to demonstrate the need for voting rights in the state. The marchers were attacked by Alabama state troopers in a brutal confrontation that became known as “Bloody Sunday.” News broadcasts and photographs revealing the senseless cruelty of the segregated South helped hasten the passage of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Despite more than 40 arrests, physical attacks and serious injuries, John Lewis remained a devoted advocate of the philosophy of nonviolence. After leaving SNCC in 1966, he continued his commitment to the Civil Rights Movement as Associate Director of the Field Foundation and his participation in the Southern Regional Council’s voter registration programs. Lewis went on to become the Director of the Voter Education Project (VEP). Under his leadership, the VEP transformed the nation's political climate by adding nearly four million minorities to the voter rolls.

In 1977, John Lewis was appointed by President Jimmy Carter to direct more than 250,000 volunteers of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency.

In 1981, he was elected to the Atlanta City Council. While serving on the Council, he was an advocate for ethics in government and neighborhood preservation. He was elected to Congress in November 1986 and has served as U.S. Representative of Georgia’s Fifth Congressional District since then. He is Senior Chief Deputy Whip for the Democratic Party in leadership in the House, a member of the House Ways & Means Committee, a member of its Subcommittee on Income Security and Family Support and Ranking Member of its Subcommittee on Oversight.
John Lewis holds a B.A. in Religion and Philosophy from Fisk University, and he is a graduate of the American Baptist Theological Seminary, both in Nashville, Tennessee. He has been awarded over 50 honorary degrees from prestigious colleges and universities throughout the United States, including Harvard University, Brown University, the University of Pennsylvania, Princeton University, Duke University, Morehouse College, Clark-Atlanta University, Howard University, Brandeis University, Columbia University, Fisk University and Troy State University.

John Lewis is the recipient of numerous awards from eminent national and international institutions, including the highest civilian honor granted by President Barack Obama the Medal of Freedom the Lincoln Medal from the historic Ford’s Theatre the Golden Plate Award given by the Academy of Excellence the Preservation Hero award given by the National Trust for Historic Preservation the Capital Award of the National Council of La Raza the Martin Luther King, Jr. Non-Violent Peace Prize, the President’s Medal of Georgetown University, the NAACP Spingarn Medal, the National Education Association Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Award and the only John F. Kennedy “Profile in Courage Award” for Lifetime Achievement ever granted by the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation.

John Lewis is the co-author of the National Book Award-winning and #1 New York Times bestselling graphic novel memoir trilogy MARCH, written with Andrew Aydin and illustrated by Nate Powell. The first volume, MARCH: Book One, received a 2014 American Library Association (ALA) Coretta Scott King Book Award Author Honor, an ALA Notable Children’s Book designation, was named one of YALSA’s 2014 Top Ten Great Graphic Novels for Teens and became the first graphic novel ever to receive a Robert F. Kennedy Book Award. MARCH: Book Two was released in 2015 and immediately became both a New York Times and Washington Post bestseller. MARCH: Book Two was awarded the comic industry’s highest honor, the Will Eisner Award as well as two Harvey awards, among other honors. MARCH: Book Three was released in 2016, debuted at #1 on the New York Times Bestseller list and became the first comics work to ever win the National Book Award. In January 2017, MARCH: Book Three made history again by winning four ALA Youth Media Awards, including the Printz Award, the Sibert Medal, the Coretta Scott King Author Book Award and the YALSA Excellence in Nonfiction Award, becoming the first book to ever win four Youth Media Awards in a single year and cementing the MARCH Trilogy’s place at the pinnacle of comics and young adult literature.
The MARCH trilogy has been adopted into the core curriculum of school systems across the country to teach the Civil Rights Movement to the next generation and has been selected as a First-Year common reading text at colleges and universities such as Michigan State University, Georgia State University, Marquette University, University of Utah Henderson, University of Illinois, Springfield Washburn University, and many others. He is also the author of Across That Bridge: Life Lessons and a Vision for Change, written with Brenda Jones, and winner of the 2012 NAACP Image Award for Best Literary Work-Biography. His biography, published in 1998, is entitled Walking With The Wind: A Memoir of the Movement. Written with Michael D’Orso, Walking With The Wind is a recipient of the Anisfield-Wolf Book Award as well as the Robert F. Kennedy Book Award. He is also the subject of two other books written about his life: Freedom Riders: John Lewis and Jim Zwerg on the Front Lines of the Civil Rights Movement, by Ann Bausum and John Lewis in the Lead, by Jim Haskins and Kathleen Benson, with illustrations by famous Georgia artist, Bennie Andrews.

He has been interviewed for numerous documentaries, news broadcasts and journals, including The Late Show with Stephen Colbert, Morning Joe, the Rachel Maddow Show, the Today Show, CNN Headline News, CNN’s American Morning, CSPAN’s Washington Journal, Time Magazine, Newsweek Magazine, The New Yorker, The New York Times, The Washington Post, USA Today, the Atlanta Journal Constitution, the Boston Globe, the Dallas Morning News, the Miami Herald, the Philadelphia Tribune, Roll Call magazine and many more.

John Lewis lives in Atlanta, Georgia. He has one son, John Miles.
Located in the heart of downtown Atlanta, the National Center for Civil and Human Rights is an engaging cultural attraction that connects the American Civil Rights Movement to today’s Global Human Rights Movements. The purpose of the Center is to create a safe space for visitors to explore the fundamental rights of all human beings so that they leave inspired and empowered to join the ongoing dialogue about human rights in their communities.

The Center was first imagined by civil rights legends Evelyn Lowery and former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young and was launched by former Mayor Shirley Franklin. The effort gained broad-based corporate and community support to become one of the few places in the world educating visitors on the bridge between the American Civil Rights Movement and contemporary Human Rights Movements around the world.

Established in 2007, the Center’s groundbreaking 43,000-square-foot facility is located on Pemberton Place, adjacent to the World of Coca-Cola and the Georgia Aquarium, on land donated by the Coca-Cola Company.

MONDAY JULY 1, 2019

Atlanta Arrival

Georgia State University Commons, 141 Piedmont Ave, NE, Atlanta, GA 30303

Welcome Barbecue

First Congregational Church, 105 Courtland St NE, Atlanta, GA 30303

Arriving in Atlanta from here, there, everywhere! The Fellows will settle into their summer accommodations at Georgia State University, meet each other, and mingle with speakers, Fellowship alumni and program staff. The historic First Congregational Church of Atlanta will host our opening reception, where Reverend Dr. Dwight D. Andrews will deliver a welcome to the city and share remarks on the role of the black church in the long African American freedom struggle. Humanity in Action Senior Fellow Antonio Lopez, an award-winning spoken word artist, will read from his repertoire of protest poetry. Following the reception, Fellows will retreat to the GSU dormitory and prepare for the first day of formal programming on July 2nd.

9:00 am - 4:00 pm Fellows arrive and check into Georgia State University Commons (GSU)

5:45 - 6:15 pm Group Meeting at GSU dormitory lobby

6:30 - 8:30 pm Welcome BBQ at First Congregational Church

8:30 – 10:00 pm Community Building Activity: “Object Share” at GSU dormitory (Hanane Abouellotfi)
The first full day of the Fellowship is devoted to getting acquainted and building a sense of community within the cohort. Fellows will receive an orientation to the program content and policies. We will collectively establish ground rules for individual and group conduct, personal accountability and communication. We will discuss the mission and ethics of Humanity in Action, and outline expectations for the Fellows’ Action Projects and final deliverables. Fellows will tour the Auburn Avenue Research Library for African American Culture and History (AARL), our host facility for our summer sessions, and they will make short presentations addressing a topic of their choosing that reflects a socio-political issue from their home country or local community.

In the latter portion of the day, Fellows will tour the exhibition galleries of the Center for Civil and Human Rights. After an informal feedback session on the exhibit contents, Fellows will hear a keynote address by esteemed historian, Professor Carol Anderson, on the roots of the modern US Civil Rights Movement and its connection to the internationally codified Human Rights regime.

9:00 - 9:30 am  Breakfast at AARL
9:30 - 12:30 pm  Orientation to the Fellowship
   -- 9:30 - 10:30  Introductions, setting expectations, and program booklet overview (Kali-Ahset Amen)

Toward a Reconciliation: Settler-Colonialism, Slavery and Georgia’s Indigenous Land and Lives

Vogel State Park’s Blood Mountain in Chattahoochee National Forest, Blairsville, GA

Georgia International Plaza, 1 State Farm Dr, Atlanta, GA 30303

Taking an excursion to the southern Appalachian Mountain region – home to some of Georgia’s Indigenous Nations – Fellows will explore the relationship of US settler colonialism to indigenous dispossession and African enslavement, and address the politics of indigenous sovereignty rights and cultural continuation today. We will pay our respects to the land and peoples who first inhabited the geography now known as Georgia, learn about their/our present social condition, and consider what “decolonization” means in relation to the social justice frameworks that drive our own passions.

7:45 - 9:30 am  Drive to Mountains

9:45 - 11:00 am  Circle Meeting with Eastern Band of Cherokee members

11:00 - 12:00 pm  Mountain Hike of Byron Reece Trail at Neels Gap with facilitated exploration of plant life (DeLesslin George-Warren - Senior Fellow)

12:00 - 1:00 pm  Lunch Discussion at mountain summit: Food Sovereignty and Cultural Sustainability in the Cherokee Nation (DeLesslin George-Warren)

1:00 - 2:15 pm  Discussion: Legacies of Settler-Colonialism and the Practice of Social Justice (Rafael Solorzano - California State University-Los Angeles)

2:15 - 2:45 pm  Recitation and Reflection on Frederick Douglass essay (1852) “What to the Slave is the Fourth of July?” (Kali-Ahset Amen)

2:45 - 2:55 pm  Break

3:00 - 3:15 pm  Silent Meditation

3:15 - 4:15 pm  Downhill Hike

4:15 - 6:15 pm  Return to Atlanta

6:30 - 8:30 pm  Break/Dinner on your own

8:30 - 10:00pm  Evening Fireworks at Georgia International Plaza

Rooted in the legacy of the Southern Freedom Movement, Project South is a Southern-based leadership development organization. Their work creates spaces for community organizing and bottom-up movement building through popular political and economic education for personal and social transformation. In this workshop, Fellows will learn about Black Radical Traditions of the US South, exploring historical cases and models of people-centered human rights organizing practiced by legendary organizers like Cesar Chavez, Ella Baker and Fannie Lou Hamer.

Fellows will also learn to apply Project South’s participatory methodology for popular education, designed to cultivate the indigenous knowledge of people most affected by oppression. Finally, the session will incorporate exercises that explore a variety of organizing methods and purposes. Exercises will also concentrate on building connections among the Fellows, developing consciousness around individual life patterns and community assets. As well as integrating general social movement analysis into each Fellow’s leadership style and approach.

SUNDAY JULY 6, 2019
Fellowship Community Building
Auburn Avenue Research Library
High Museum of Art, 1280 Peachtree St NE, Atlanta, GA 30309

Fellows will wrap-up introductory presentations and continue deepening their cohort connection on an optional visit to the High Museum of Art in the midtown neighbourhood. Currently on view, the exhibition “Of Origins and Belonging, Drawn from Atlanta” is the third in a series of exhibitions at the High focused on work by Atlanta-based artists. The exhibition features six artists who address issues related to place, belonging and heritage in their work. Compelled by the national debate and dialogue around immigration reform, this iteration of the High’s Atlanta drawings project features artists whose distinct voices, diverse perspectives and personal experiences represent world-views informed and enriched by their cultural heritage and the bond they share as members of a diverse creative community in Atlanta. Among the participating artists, Caomin and Whyte immigrated to the United States as adults, and Cambrón is a DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals) recipient.

Electoral Mobilization: Forging a Multiracial Base
Auburn Avenue Research Library

The day will begin with a film screening of the documentary “13th”, which examines the historical and present-day contexts of disenfranchisement and incarceration of people of color in the US. The session continues with a film talk-back panel with staffers from the American Civil Liberties Union of Georgia and Asian Americans Advancing Justice. The panel discussion will connect histories of incarceration vote suppression and immigrant exclusion with current battles over electoral integrity and participation. We will also take a look at progressive strategies used to create new coalitions for civic engagement among voters of color. With a focus on black Latinx and Asian American-Pacific Islander constituencies, our speakers will discuss their combined efforts to substantially increase minority voter turnout in the most recent election cycle.

An afternoon workshop on electoral organizing across diverse groups rounds out the day. Facilitated by The New Georgia Project, the workshop will immerse Fellows in the latest digital innovations to counter vote suppression. As part of the session, Fellows will engage in a digital hackathon to construct a game storyboard and app prototype that will support local vote protection efforts.

8:30 - 9:00 am  Announcements

9:00 - 10:45 am  Breakfast Cinema: “13th” by Ava DuVernay

10:45 - 12:15 pm  Panel Discussion: “Electoral Mobilization: Forging a Multiracial Base” (Christopher Bruce - ACLU of Georgia, Kyera Singleton - Senior Fellow & ACLU of Georgia, Phi Nguyen - Asian Americans Advancing Justice)

Education for Liberation in the African American Tradition

Auburn Avenue Research Library

Atlanta University Center Robert W. Woodruff Library, 111 James P Brawley Dr SW, Atlanta, GA 30314

Fellows will visit Atlanta’s West End historic district, a longstanding hub of African American culture education and business enterprise. We will begin our experience at the Atlanta University Center (AUC) with a panel discussion on the long struggle for black education. Our panelists will discuss the history of freedom schools, the evolution and promise of historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs) and the emergence and legacy of the Atlanta Student Movement.

Following the panel discussion, Fellows will explore the Library’s Special Collections archives where they will be introduced to methods of historical documentation and analysis as tools for recording and retrieving community narratives. In an archival exploration activity, Fellows will photograph an image or artifact of interest from the AUC collections, research the artifact and report about its significance to the group in morning meeting on the following day.

The day will conclude with a multi-campus AUC tour, designed to explore the rich institutional histories of Spelman College, Clark Atlanta University, Morehouse College and Morris Brown College and their collective role in African American social, economic and political development nationwide.

5:00 - 6:00 pm  Peer Feedback
In collaboration with Gallery 72, a municipally-owned art gallery run by the Atlanta Mayor’s Office of Cultural Affairs, Fellows will participate in a day of public dialogues and a workshop examining the generative power of artistic collaborations that shape positive community outcomes. Scholars from Emory University will make presentations on the entwining of art and activism in 20th-century black freedom struggles, emphasizing the Southern dimensions of the Black Arts Movement. A subsequent panel of socially-engaged artists will share personal experiences with community-based, contemporary art production.

Finally, an afternoon workshop, “Documentary Photography for Social Justice,” will explore the power of photography to provoke thought stir emotion and spur social transformation. The session will: survey great American documentary photographers and interpret their impact consider different ways that documentary photographers can foster societal change and address difficulties that photographers encounter, when trying to reach and activate new target groups. The workshop includes hands-on activities that will encourage Fellows to create their own socially-conscious visual projects.
Southern Queer of Color Liberation and Allyship

Auburn Avenue Research Library
Historic Fourth Ward Skatepark at Atlanta Beltline Eastside Trail

Allyship plays a critically role in our efforts to create a socially just world. It is also a powerful instrument, and when harnessed effectively, can create new pathways and opportunities for social transformation. Our morning presentation will offer insights into allied southern activism as it relates to LGBTQ, racial and HIV justice; the role of movement history and storytelling in community building and art and culture as critical strategies for social change. The session will be led by the Counter Narrative Project, an organization that builds power among black gay men and works in solidarity and coalition with all movements committed to social justice. Fellows will then participate in the two-part workshop, “Allyship for A Beautiful & Socially Just World.” This interactive session will provide participants with core principles of allyship strategies to build stronger connections across difference; and tools to effectively leverage the insights from their social identities to lead in more inclusive ways.

In the final afternoon session, Fellows will engage with panelists from three LGBT advocacy organizations who will address their work on behalf of Black women and Queer and Trans Communities of Color living in the South. SPARK aims to queer the Reproductive Justice movement by bringing a racial justice and queer liberation framework to the reproductive justice movement. TRANScending Barriers ATL seeks to empower the transgender and gender non-conforming community in Georgia through harm reduction from the Prison Industrial Complex and leadership development. Southerners on New Ground (SONG) is working to build and maintain a Southern infrastructure designed to capacitate LGBTQ organizers foster multi-racial organizing and develop strong relationships between people who could and should be allies in regional Queer Liberation.

We will round out the day with a Fellow-led soapbox poetry reading on the Atlanta Beltline. With the general public as our audience, our poetry event “SPIRAL: Us is Enough,” will be inspired by our allyship-focused Fellowship theme of Grassroots Solidarities. Fellows will read original and borrowed works that can inspire others to embrace unity, solidarity and change for the greater good.

Southern Justice Road Trip: Coalitions for Latinx Labor Rights and Dignity
Gadsden, AL and Birmingham, AL

This year, the John Lewis Fellows will embark on a four-day study trip to Alabama, encompassing six unique locations that will ground our exploration of the connections between structural racism, rural poverty, land dispossession, housing and food insecurity, disfranchisement and incarceration.

Our journey begins with a visit to the infamous Etowah Immigration Detention Center in Gadsden, Alabama, which currently houses approximately 300 male immigrants in detention from Central America. Adelante Alabama Worker Center, a member of the National Day Laborer Organizing Network, will serve as our host for the day. Adelante aims to unite day laborers, domestic workers and other low-wage and immigrant workers and their families in the Birmingham area to defend their rights, promote their dignity and pursue justice for all. As visitation guests at Etowah, Fellows will hear some of the detainees’s stories and learn about the multi-stakeholder “Shut Down Etowah” campaign.

We will then travel to Birmingham Civil Rights District, an area of downtown Birmingham, Alabama where several significant events in the Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s occurred. Finally, in Birmingham, we will participate in a bilingual forum with Latinx community organizers and Adelante members to learn more about issues and alliance-driven solutions to Latinx marginalization in the South.

8:00 am    Depart Atlanta for Gadsden, AL
10:45 am    Arrival in Gadsden and Visit with detainees at Etowah Detention Center as guests of Adelante Alabama Worker Center
1:00 – 2:30 pm    Group Reflection over Lunch: Detention Center experience and overview of Latinx migration trends in the South (Jessica Vosburgh - Adelante and Gabriel Caban Cubero - Adelante)

4:30 – 5:00 pm    Break
4:30 – 5:00 pm  Break

5:00 – 7:00 pm  Bilingual Forum at Adelante Worker Center: “Dignified Lives, Livelihoods, and the Organizing Work of Adelante”

7:00 - 8:30 pm  Drive to Epes, AL followed by late night dinner and settling into accommodations at the Rural Training Center
WEDNESDAY JULY 17, 2019

Southern Justice Road Trip: Black Farm Families and Land-Based Economic Cooperatives

Epes, AL

At the Rural Training Center (RTC), the Federation of Southern Cooperatives assists in land retention and development, especially for African Americans, but for all family farmers. The Federation conducts its work with an active and democratic involvement in resource-poor areas across the South, through education outreach and coop-building strategies that support low-income people in molding their own communities.

While at the RTC, Fellows will learn about land rights and food sovereignty struggles among Black Farming families, historically and currently. Fellows will also participate in an interactive workshop to learn how to establish a cooperative enterprise for community development. As part of the workshop, Fellows will embark on a team problem solving activity - a coop “organizing challenge”, based on real-world scenarios of members of the Federation. Rounding out the day, Fellows will work the farm at the RTC, hear testimonies from local farmers, and learn about the evolution of the African American music tradition of “The Blues.”

8:00 - 9:00 am  Breakfast, Group Debrief
9:00 - 10:30 am  Agricultural Demonstration/Farm Tour
10:30 - 11:00 am  Documentary Screening “Not a One Person Thing”

Southern Justice Road Trip: Facing the Challenge of Affordable Housing in Rural America

Newbern, AL and Greensboro, AL

A creative leader in helping to address the affordable housing shortage in the rural South, Rural Studio’s design-build initiatives support both housing and local economies in rural markets through collaboration with national partners, municipal stakeholders and community residents. Fellows will participate in a tour, interactive activities and discussions with Rural Studio staff, students and community partners to explore cooperative approaches to affordable housing and capacity building for rural communities. We will also make an excursion to Greensboro to learn about the history of the Safe House Museum, a historic refuge for civil rights movement foot soldiers seeking protection against retaliatory racial violence.

7:15 – 7:45 am   Breakfast at the Rural Training Center
7:45 – 9:00 am   Drive to Newbern
9:00 – 3:00 pm   Visit with Auburn Rural Studio (Katherine Ferguson - Rural Studio)

Southern Justice Road Trip:
Brutal Witness: Public Commemoration to Heal Deep Wounds

Montgomery, AL

The Equal Justice Initiative (EJI) is committed to ending mass incarceration and excessive punishment in the United States to challenging racial and economic injustice and to protecting basic human rights for the most vulnerable people in American society. Fellows will visit EJI’s Legacy Museum and Peace and Justice Memorial where they will explore the history of convict leasing, lynching, and other forms of racial terrorism in the South that forced the exodus of millions of African Americans to the North and West in the 20th century.

Through our experience at the EJI Memorial, we will reflect on the questions: “how do official histories erase the experiences of oppressed peoples from the public transcript?” and “how can individuals and communities shape authentic and inclusive history narratives through the creation of memorials and monuments?”. Fellows will also consider the connection of these muted violences to racial biases in criminal justice and mass incarceration today. We will engage with EJI staff in a forum about the alliances that shape their public and legal advocacy work for criminal justice reform. In the late afternoon, we will embark for travel to Atlanta.

7:00 - 7:30 am Breakfast at RTC
8:00 - 10:15 am Drive to Montgomery, AL
10:30 - 12:45 pm Visit to the EJI Legacy Museum

Southern Justice Road Trip: Enslavement Freedomways and Human Rights in Savannah

Savannah, GA

Fellows will learn about African enslavement and freedom on the Atlantic coast as they explore the roots of Georgia’s oldest black community in one of the nation’s oldest cities. In 1964, Martin Luther King, Jr. declared Savannah the most desegregated city south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Fellows will learn what made the city distinctive as we explore the little-known history of the Savannah Protest Movement to end racial segregation. We will uplift the bold organizing efforts of African-American students and community leaders in the early 1960s, and situate their struggles in the long trajectory of black liberation, from the 17th century until the present. Our historical walking tour of Africana heritage cultural resistance and political protest will be followed by an evening of reflection and relaxation on the Savannah River.

ANDY ANTUNA
University of Alaska Anchorage | Anchorage, United States

Andres (Andy) Antuna is a recent graduate from the University of Alaska Anchorage majoring in Political Science with a concentration in American Politics. After several years spent in student government and a principal student organizer of the Model United Nations Conference of Alaska, he found a passion for addressing the root causes of discrimination worldwide through policy-focused advocacy. He spent a semester abroad studying public policy in Scotland, advocated on behalf of students to the Alaska State Legislature and interned at the United Nations within the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues. He fully intends to get a law degree with a focus on the intersection of law, politics and minority rights and is currently working on the Alaska Public Education Matters campaign, advocating to legislators about the impact on students and minorities related to funding cuts for education in the state of Alaska.

ANNE SOFIE MØLLER ASKHOLM
Aarhus University | Aarhus, Denmark

Anne Sofie Askholm lives in Aarhus, Denmark. She has a BA in Religion, Anthropology and Development Studies, and an MA in Visual Anthropology. Besides that she has studied photography and film at Fatamorgana - Danish school of art photography. She currently works on the island Samsø in Denmark where she is working on two projects. One is about including citizens in city planning, the other is about creating an exhibition about climate change and green energy. Before this she has worked with film production and exhibitions. In her spare time she is part of the editorial board on NAFA Network (Nordic Anthropological Film Association). She is interested in both themes connecting social and ethical issues with art and activism as well as relations between rural and city life, and human-nature-climate relations. After Humanity in Action she will pursue new projects concerning these topics.
ELIZABETH BARAHONA
Northwestern University | Orlando, United States
Elizabeth is a first-year doctoral student in History at Northwestern University. A native of Orlando, Florida, she attended Duke University in North Carolina and studied the borderlands, Latinx history, and human rights. At Duke, Elizabeth spent time aiding immigrant human rights organizations in Tucson, Arizona and she was instrumental in changing the university policy to accept undocumented students and to create a Latinx center at Duke. Elizabeth’s senior thesis, “The History of Latinx Students at Duke University,” investigates how Latinx students racially identified themselves since their arrival at Duke in 1926 and how the Duke University administration identified them, at a time when Duke felt encapsulated in a Black/White racial paradigm. Elizabeth spends her time providing college and scholarship workshops to students of color and mentoring undocumented undergraduates.

ASHLEY BERRY
The University of Texas School of Law | Austin, United States
Raised in Dallas, Texas, Ashley Berry attended the University of Texas at Austin where she majored in Italian and minored in French. She also spent a summer in Italy and a summer in France where she studied both languages and cultures. During her time in both countries she was exposed to various issues surrounding the refugee crisis. This exposure strengthened her commitment to human rights and influenced her decision to pursue a law degree. Currently, she is a rising third year law student at the University of Texas School of Law. In her spare time, Ashley volunteers with a program that helps middle school students build leadership skills and confidence. After law school, Ashley plans to work on various legal projects pertaining to educational equity.

BRANDON BROWN
Florida State University | Hollywood, United States
Brandon Brown is a 2019 graduate of Florida State University (FSU) with a Bachelor of Science degree in Family & Child Sciences and a minor in General Business. Originally residing from Hollywood, Florida, he has spent the past four years in Tallahassee dedicating his time towards academics, civic engagement with the FSU Student Government Association and uplifting the local community. Brandon previously served as a student senator and the 2018-2019 Student Body Vice President for his alma mater. In these roles, he focused his efforts on advocating for the expressed concerns of the student body, programming with identity-based student groups, organizing community service opportunities and furthering the values of diversity and inclusion on campus. Brandon is now pursuing a Master of Science degree in Applied American Politics & Policy at Florida State and aspires to attend law school in the near future to become a civil rights or governmental attorney.
YASMENE DERGHAM
High Point University | Plattsburgh, United States

A Plattsburgh, New York, native, Yasmene Dergham is a graduating senior at High Point University with a double major in International Relations and Political Science, along with a History minor focused in Middle Eastern Studies. She has spent six months in Amman, Jordan through the David L. Boren Scholarship and a semester in Morocco through the Benjamin A. Gilman International Education Scholarship. As the daughter of a refugee of the Lebanese Civil War, Yasmene is passionate about minority rights at home and abroad, and completes research on the history of minority rights in the Mashriq Middle East. At her home university, she chartered and served as President of the Global Student Association, expanding her world view and helping to promote diversity on campus. After graduation, she plans to pursue work with refugees in the private sector or enter the government sector.

LEILANI DOUGLAS
University of Chicago | Grand Terrace, United States

Leilani recently graduated from the University of Chicago (AB ’17, Phi Beta Kappa). She is a staunch believer in every person’s right to have the information and power they need to remain healthy and act as agents of change in their communities. In college, spurred by this belief, she led high school students in research and data collection with the nonprofit MAPSCorps, taught sex education in Chicago Public Schools, and conducted independent field research in Haiti for the eradication of cholera. Post-college, she worked in the Lindau Laboratory at the University of Chicago and spearheaded the editorial process at WomanLab.org. A performer who believes that storytelling is one of our most powerful tools for social change, she plans to pursue a PhD in anthropology. She aims to combine empirical knowledge about science politics and identity with the art of storytelling to encourage civic engagement and radically creative policy making.
AKILA SILKE GÜÇ
University of Heidelberg | Heidelberg, Germany

A Kilah Silke Güç was born and raised in Berlin. After finishing her Bachelor’s degree in Cultural Studies English and American Studies, she’s doing her Master’s in Translation Studies. She is the technical editor of the YouTube podcast BlackRockTalk which means she is responsible for the transcription and translation. Akilah values the empowerment of Black people which plays a key role in her activism. She initiated a tutoring group for Black kids and managed the project Black Diaspora Art, both in cooperation with the grassroots organization Each One Teach One e.V. She also co-organized an exchange program between young Black people from Germany, Ghana, Swaziland and United Kingdom. Akilah seeks to address socio-political issues around the queer Black community, e.g. in the frame of the CuTieBIPOC festival. In her free time, she loves to cook South African food and listen to 90’s R&B and Hip Hop.

MEREDITH GUDESBLATT
Middlebury | Sayville, United States

Meredith studied Migration and Development at Middlebury (M.A. 2019) as a Kathryn Davis Fellow for Peace. Originally from Long Island, she received a BA from Cornell University and wrote a thesis on the role of Holocaust discourse and memory in the aftermath of the Dirty War in Argentina and the Genocide of indigenous communities in Guatemala. After graduation, she completed two years of AmeriCorps and a Fulbright García-Robles Scholarship before serving as a paralegal for unaccompanied immigrant children. She splits her time between Chiapas, México and the United States, and has made homes in Phoenix, Miami, Houston and Harlingen. She plans to complete a JD degree and work at the intersection of migration, labor and human rights in pursuit of a world where humanity trumps nationality. Meredith enjoys most shades of green and convincing people to read Mohsin Hamid’s Exit West; she is also learning to sew, embroider and knit.
ANDRES GUZMAN
University of Southern California | Los Angeles, United States

Born and raised in Union City, New Jersey, Andres graduated from the University of Southern California (USC) in 2018 with a BA in English, Creative Writing. He describes his hometown as the microcosm of Latin America, where every nationality and culture is represented. He seeks to study the Latin-American and African-American experience in the United States as well as their diasporas. As the first in his family to attend college, Andres was involved in the First-Generation Student Union, a student led organization to help low-income and first-generation students at USC. Dr. Carol Anderson

Carol Anderson is a Charles Howard Candler Professor of African American Studies at Emory University. Professor Anderson's research and teaching focus on public policy; particularly the ways that domestic and international policies intersect through the issues of race, justice and equality in the United States. Professor Anderson is the author of Eyes Off the Prize: The United Nations and the African-American Struggle for Human Rights, 1944-1955, which was published by Cambridge University Press and awarded both the Gustavus Myers and Myrna Bernath Book Awards. In her second monograph, Bourgeois Radicals: The NAACP and the Struggle for Colonial Liberation, 1941-1960, also published by Cambridge, Professor Anderson uncovered the long-hidden and important role of the nation's most powerful civil rights organization in the fight for the liberation of peoples of color in Africa and Asia. Professor Anderson's most recent work, White Rage: The Unspoken Truth of Our Nation's Divide, published by Bloomsbury, is a New York Times Bestseller, and was a New York Times Editor's Pick for July 2016. Her most recent book One Person, No Vote: How Voter Suppression is Destroying our Democracy was released in 2018. Professor Anderson was a member of the U.S. State Department’s Historical Advisory Committee and is currently on the Board of Directors of the National Economic and Social Rights Initiative. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Miami University, where she earned Bachelor’s and Master’s degree in Political Science International Relations and History. She earned her Ph. in history from The Ohio State. Professor Anderson is a close friends of Humanity in Action, having spoken in the Fellowship every year, at conferences and in webinars for Senior Fellows.

Terence Courtney

Born and raised in Atlanta Georgia, Terence has been an advocate for equity for twenty years. He began this work with the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) where he brought together African American, Latino, and Asian workers to improve their lives in Atlanta, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Terence led union campaigns in the public and private sectors and later was appointed to be the State-wide Union Representative for SEIU in Georgia.

Terence increased the scope of his organizing work when he became one of the founding members and first staff person of a coalition of labor unions, student groups, community groups and faith organizations called Atlanta Jobs with Justice (AJwJ). He also co-founded community organizations to meet the needs of evolving human rights campaigns in Atlanta’s public sector. One such organization called the Atlanta Public Sector Alliance (APSA) won significant victories in the struggle against neoliberal attacks on public life.

Expanding his movement-building work from City-wide to Southern Region-wide, Terence became the Southeastern Regional Organizer for the Black Alliance for Just Immigration (BAJI). Creating committees and coalitions with Black Immigrants and Black Americans throughout the South, Terence facilitated a process whereby everyday working people were able to educate themselves and address pivotal issues concerning immigrant rights and mass incarceration from a Black perspective. This experience refined his strategy for economic justice even further. His new theory of change came to not only include workplace-based/community-based fights, but also a struggle to democratize the economy itself - through Cooperatives Development.
Terence next developed human rights and cooperative development exploratory committees. One of which led to the formation of an organization called the Organization for Human Rights and Democracy (OHRD), where he served as a Founder and the Director of Organizing overseeing campaigns against school takeover and privatization. The other project became Cooperative Atlanta – a committee assembled of diverse Atlantans to study the Cooperative Development movement and strategize on how it might be implemented at the grassroots level. From the collective research, study and dialogues of the group, Terence and the others began to grasp the real potential that Cooperatives had to offer. This work brought Terence and his colleagues into closer contact with the rich history and practical experiences of organizations like the Federation of Southern Cooperatives.

The outstanding and socially transformative role that the Federation of Southern Cooperatives has played in struggling for Cooperative Economic Development, Land Retention and Advocacy inspired Terence to continue his commitment to fight for justice by joining the ranks of the Federation. Currently, Terence serves as the Director of Cooperative Development &amp; Strategic Initiatives, where he supports the cooperative economic development of newly emerging cooperatives, while organizing with members to strengthen existing cooperatives. He is fortunate to work with staff from across the US South to advance the goals and objectives of Federation members and the Cooperative movement.

Gabriel Caban Cubero

Richard Gabriel first came to Adelante as Organizing Fellow for the Shut Down Etowah campaign. Their first taste of organizing began when they fought against Amendment 1, an anti-LGBTQ constitutional amendment proposed in North Carolina. This passion for organizing developed into advocacy opposing HB2 (anti-Trans bill in North Carolina), pressuring decision makers to make Wake Forest University a Sanctuary Campus for undocumented students and educating peers in organizing and power building. Continuing to push for justice, they are incredibly excited to be directly addressing immigration detention and mass incarceration with this amazing group of people, both in Adelante and the Shut Down Etowah campaign.

Dr. Roslyn Pope

In March 1960, Spelman student government president, Roslyn Pope authored “An Appeal for Human Rights” which appeared as a full-page advertisement in multiple newspapers including the Atlanta Constitution and the Nation. Her words, “We do not intend to wait placidly for those rights which are already legally and morally ours to be meted out to us one at a time,” ignited the Atlanta Student Movement in Atlanta. During the Modern Civil Rights Movement, the tenets articulated in the manifesto shaped the ideals of a generation of student activists throughout the United States. One of the most significant accomplishments of this document was to recast civil rights as human rights, asserting entitlement to the dignity and inalienable rights inherent in humanity. When asked about the “Appeal” and the words she so eloquently penned, she replied, “Having just returned from a year of study in Paris as a Merrill Scholar, I was not in the mood to return to segregation and second-class citizenship. ... I was unshackled. I was looking for a movement.” In 2012, Dr. Pope was recognized with a proclamation by the Atlanta City Council, and in 2013, she received an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from Spelman College for her years of service as a civil rights activist educator and civic leader. Most recently, Dr. Pope participated in a dialogue with Spelman College students about civil and human rights, and she delivered the 2017 Commencement Address at Freedom University.

ABOUT HUMANITY IN ACTION

Humanity in Action is a transatlantic non-profit organization that educates, inspires and connects a community of students and young professionals committed to the values of pluralism, social justice, human rights and civic engagement in their own communities and around the world. Our goal is to inspire responsible leadership to meet the local and global challenges of social division and social conflict.

Antisemitism, racism, islamophobia, trans- and homophobia, misogyny, and other forms of discrimination and hatred are testing pluralistic and democratic societies. Our programs address these issues head-on. Since its founding over two decades ago, Humanity in Action has engaged over 2,000 leaders in a variety of educational human rights programs in Europe and the United States. They now form a unique international alumni community committed to social justice and human rights.

Our programs are testing grounds for thinking anew with activists, experts, policymakers, artists and business leaders about complex issues of pluralism. We identify new generations of social, cultural, political and other change makers and offer them multifaceted and collaborative education that bridges the historical with the contemporary.

Humanity in Action’s annual Fellowship brings together about 150 European and US college and university students, as well as young professionals based in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Poland, the Netherlands, Ukraine and the United States. Throughout a four-week, on-site program, Humanity in Action Fellows meet emerging and established leaders of diverse backgrounds and collectively look at historical and contemporary social justice issues.

Upon completing the on-site component of the Fellowship, Fellows return to their communities and implement an Action Project as a way of giving back and sharing their newly acquired knowledge and skills. Action projects are as diverse as Humanity in Action Fellows; they are a valuable resource to the communities in which they are rooted.

Humanity in Action maintains an international alumni community students, young professionals, established leaders and experts in various fields, providing Fellows and Senior Fellows with a range of educational and career opportunities. These have included seminars, workshops, study trips and other Professional Fellowships at leading civic and political institutions, such as the European Parliament, the U.S. Congress, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Ohio and Georgia. Through its programs and partnerships with outstanding civic and educational organizations including the National Center for Civil and Human Rights, The New School, The POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews, the Anne Frank House and the Bertelsmann Foundation North America, Humanity in Action contributes in innovative ways to advance human rights and democratic freedoms.

Humanity in Action is a non-profit organization with governing and advisory boards in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Denmark, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Poland and the United States. Humanity in Action’s international headquarters are in New York City. Major supporters of Humanity in Action have included the Ford Foundation, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the William H. Donner Foundation, the Richard and Rhoda Goldman Fund, the Foundation Remembrance, Responsibility and Future (EVZ), the Stavros Niarchos Foundation, the Dutch Ministry for Health, Welfare and Sport and the U.S. Department of State.

“Humanity in Action is one of the great organizations that is making a great contribution, not just to America, but to people around the world. As members of the human family, it is our mission to respect the dignity and the worth of every human being.”

- U.S. Representative John Lewis.
The John Lewis Fellowship may only last for a year, but engagement with Humanity in Action lasts much longer. The John Lewis Fellowship serves as an entryway into a global network of people dedicated to advancing human rights, pluralism and active citizenship around the world. There are many ways to engage in the Humanity in Action Network. The diagram below shows each Fellows’ progression through Humanity in Action, starting with the on-site Fellowship, the planning and execution of the Action Project, and the Senior Fellow opportunities available to them afterwards.
